AFRICAN LILY BLOOMS; MEASURED AT SIX FEET

Mr. and Mrs. D. G. Hopkins, Torresdale, Have Three Others Ready to Bloom

PISTIL 30 INCHES HIGH

TORRESDALE, Mar. 11.—Mr. and Mrs. D. G. Hopkins must cast their eyes upward if they wish to see the African lily which is now in bloom at their home here. For the lily was exactly six feet tall yesterday, and by today may have added a few inches to its stature, so swift is its growth.

The sturdy stalk, shooting from the huge bulb, which was placed in a bowl minus earth, supports the lily in a decidedly upright position, the length of the stalk, which is 1½ inches in diameter, measuring exactly two yards together with the bloom.

The pistil, which is the same color as the lily, a deep purple, is measured at 30 inches. The stalk is a mottled green.

Just to satisfy themselves that several inches are added overnight, Mr. and Mrs. Hopkins measured the plant a few night ago, and the next morning found that three inches had been gained.

Although a decidedly nasty odor accompanies the lily in time, it is not noticeable as yet, unless one comes in immediate contact with the flower. But within a day or two it will be necessary to place the plant outside, state the Hopkins.

Three more lilies will soon be in bloom, one within a few days, and two others probably next week. The one scheduled to bloom next, it is believed will be a bigger lily, but with a shorter stalk. The Hopkins, glad to share the rare bloom, have expressed their desire to have anyone interested call to see it.

A small bulb of the African lily, sometimes known as a snake lily, was first secured by Mrs. Hopkins 24 years ago. She nourished it carefully, planting it in the earth, out-of-doors, each Spring. A green growth appeared, and each Fall the bulb was dug up and placed in a dark cellar. After it was four or five years old the original bulb sent off a shoot in the middle of the Winter, and when taken into a warm room, the lily appeared within a short time. From each such bulb, a few additional bulbs can be secured each year. The result is that Mrs. Hopkins now has four shooting forth lilies, and several smaller ones which will bloom in a few years. She has presented many such bulbs to friends.

Rome, Mar. 11.—For a conference which may prove of great importance to German-Vatican relations, Pope Pius XII. today received German Foreign Minister Von Ribbentrop in audience and conversed with him for 65 minutes.

Earlier the German diplomat conferred for half an hour with King Victor Emmanuel at the palace.

There was no immediate announcement of the trend of the talk between His Holiness and Von Ribbentrop, but advance predictions had indicated that it might be aimed at a reconciliation between Germany and the Holy See.

POLICE SCHOOL TO OPEN AT DOYLESTOWN

Sessions Are Planned To Get Under Way On Tuesday, March 19th

TWO-HOUR CLASSES

It is planned for the Bucks County Police Academy to begin its fifth session in courses in police science on Tuesday, March 19th. The classes will be held in the men's jury room in the basement of the Court House, Doylestown. They will begin at eight p. m., and close at 10 p. m. The courses will continue for three months with two class periods a week, lasting two hours.

Courses in criminal investigation, criminal procedure, law, the handling of traffic problems and identification will be included in the curriculum.

"The course will be open to all police officers in Bucks county and all members of the Bucks County Police Association," said Earl D. Blair, dean, who also emphasized the fact that no civilians will be allowed to enter the courses unless they have been recommended by a police academy member or law enforcement officer.

"The completion of this course will serve as one of the entrance requirements for a course in forensic science to be given by the police academy in the future," said Mr. Blair.

Carl H. Pottegger, of Newtown, former member of the Indiana State Police and instructor of science in Syracuse University, and now ballistics expert for the Bucks County Crime Laboratory, will serve as the principal instructor.

"The police school promises to be one of the most interesting and will afford the law enforcement officers more detailed studies and advanced work than have the previous sessions," said Mr. Blair.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Lintman, Tacoma, were Thursday dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Capella, Logan street. Miss Helen Clott, Holmesburg, spent three days last week with her sister, Mrs. Capella.

Here and There in Bucks County Towns

Flames, believed to have had their origin in a broken gas line, Wednesday morning badly damaged a portable feed mill belonging to Charles K. Large, Edison, while it was proceeding on the Almshouse road, between Newtown and Richboro.

The large truck, on which the mill is located, was operated by Mr. Large's employee, Raymond Ulrich, and without any warning flames broke out at a point under the cab of the truck.

Unable to extinguish them, Mr. Ulrich called for help, and the Newtown Fire Company responded with two pieces of apparatus. The firemen extinguished the flames, but not before they had caused damage amounting to no less than $1500. The loss is covered by insurance.

Had the entire apparatus been destroyed, approximately $8500 would have been required to replace it.

At a meeting of the Doylestown School Board, Supervising Principal J. Leonard Halderman reported he had received a letter from the Department of Public Instruction at Harrisburg informing him that they could not believe there were as few defects among the health of the school children as had been indicated in the medical inspection.

Mr. Halderman explained that the health of the Doylestown school boys and girls is on the present high level largely due to the full-time school nurse, who checks up on the physical defects after they have been reported in the school medical examinations, and sees that they are corrected as far as possible.

In monthly session the Self-Perk Joint School Board decided to introduce an agricultural course. Classes will begin with the opening of the schools next September.

Supervising Principal Lewis N. Snyder informed the board that the Department of Public Instruction, Harrisburg, had given him permission to proceed with plans for the new course. He will begin this work immediately.

Owing to the fact that the consolidated school building is filled to capacity now, the classes will be conducted in the old high school building in Perkasio.

With the Department of Public Instruction making the suggestions, school officials will purchase the necessary equipment.

Several persons have already applied for the position as teacher of the new course. It was decided by the directors at their meeting to employ the teacher for the entire year. At first only one teacher will be required, but if there is a continued increase in the enrollment, additional teachers will be added.

The 25th anniversary banquet of Friendship Thimble Social is being arranged by members in Doylestown. Election of officers will be an event of April 3rd.

Mrs. Hartman, Neshaminy, who has been instructing a number of Warrington women in the repairing of chairs and stools and the making of artificial flowers, door stops and book ends, was given a surprise in celebration of her birthday anniversary at a meeting of the class at the home of Mrs. Frank P. MacNair, in Warrington.

Plans for an Easter egg hunt to be held at Riegelsville, March 23rd, were made at a meeting of the Girl Scouts this week. The members also took into consideration the proposition of giving a play in the near future.

An Attack That Failed

Washington, Mar. 9. FOR a good many years a major part of New Deal political technique was the playing up of the rich men on the one side, and the other side. They rang the changes on the du Ponts, the Liberty League and the "greedy reactionaries."

RECENT consciousness of the degree to which the "idle rich" were forging to the front in Administration diplomatic posts has made it seem the part of wisdom for the propagandists to stop harping on the old note. However, recent appointment of Mr. Ernest T. Weir as head of the Republican finance committee was too great a temptation.

CONTRABAND COAL

Britain's announced determination to seize German coal consigned to Italy by sea may precipitate a showdown between allegedly neutral Italy and the Allies. It is no secret that Italian war supplies are going to Germany in large quantities, and the German coal may be in payment for these materials.

Italy's "neutrality" has been suspected by the Allies from the start of the war. While Italy appeared for a time greatly exercised by the Russian invasion of Finland, even this did not seem to strain the Italo-German axis unduly, certainly a suspicious circumstance.

Just before the outbreak of the war there were reports that the Allies would get at Hitler through Italy, which was then expected to line up actively with the Fuehrer. Mussolini's protestations when war came that Italy was "neutral" was believed by many observers to be the best way for him to help Hitler at the time.

At any rate, Mussolini's announced intention of defying the British blockade of German coal may be an indication of where his real interests lie. Perhaps England suspects as much and is determined to drive the blackshirt from his perch on the fence.

EATING FOR HEALTH

Food processing is of vital importance to mankind, and everyone should be deeply interested in what changes occur in canning, freezing, drying, smoking and preserving, as well as in cooking. Some extensive laboratory work had been done in ascertaining the facts. The researches of the Norwegian Canning Industry have enabled Dr. Guilbrand Lund to give to the public some valuable information about what happens to the vitamins now known to mean so much to health and strength.

Only for a short time each year can fresh fruits and vegetables be obtained by most persons, and the same is true of fresh fish; yet these foods contain necessary vitamins to prevent disease and lowered vitality. Dr. Lund's report is highly encouraging, because he shows that in most instances the vitamins are preserved to a highly gratifying extent by processing.

The chief source of Vitamin A is fish liver oils, and to a certain extent also fish body oils. These are canned without loss of the vitamin when the fish is covered with brine or oil and the air is excluded. Vitamin D, chief source of which is fish liver and fish body oils, was found not to be affected either by processing or by storage.

Canned berries retain 80 to 90 per cent of Vitamin C, so plentiful in the fresh product. Canned vegetables, if they are not soaked or blanched before being put in the cans, have 60 to 100 per cent of Vitamin C found in fresh vegetables.

The anti-beriberi factor, Vitamin B, or sometimes called Vitamin G, is retained in canned food, but earlier studies reported great loss of this vitamin due to its sensitivity to heat. Cod liver is the best source of this disease resisting vitamin, and its brine used in storing is recommended for soups and sauces.

Goering, Germany's economic dictator, has decreed confiscation of all factories, farms and forest land incorporated in the Reich. The Greek had a word for that, too.

ECHOES OF THE PAST

By Courier Staff Member

Review of the news as it appeared in the Bucks County Gazette issue dated at Bristol July 18, 1878. The Gazette, a weekly newspaper published in Bristol, was discontinued following its merger with the Courier.

The following items are culled from the Bucks County Gazette, issue of July 18, 1878:

The school board of Newtown borough has re-appointed Florence E. Sickie principal and Anna Jackson as assistant, at the public school for the coming year. In the primary Carrie Dunning, from a school in Middletown, was appointed.

Two hundred thousand young shad have been placed in the Delaware river below Trenton Falls by Fish Commissioner Anderson. They were hatched from the spawn at Millford. Major Anderson is one of the most energetic fish commissioners in the union, and leaves no duty unfulfilled.

The following named articles have been submitted to the department recently, and ruled upon as unmarketable: viz: cement, confectionery in any form, eye glasses or spectacles, glass jewelry having pins attached, salve, sewing machine needles, steel pens, stove polish, sugar, tin dishes, tooth powder.

Recently John A. Wright deposited himself in a tub and paddled from Bristol to Burlington in 33 minutes. He was then about to start for Beverly, but seeing the Twilight in the distance relinquished the idea.

On Tuesday afternoon, a sad accident occurred to Charlie a little son of Charles W. Cutler, who resides on Wood street near Market. The boy with a young companion went down to the mill to gather chips, and from the story of his companion at the coroner's inquest, the following appears to be as correct a statement of the affair as can be obtained. After reaching the mill, some larger boys came along and dared Charlie to get upon the raft of logs lying in the canal basin, and finally offered him a piece of candy if he would do so. He complied, and when he had got on the raft the fellow who induced him to go there, took hold of him by the arms and while pretending to throw him overboard he went sure enough. Instead of jumping in after him and trying to save the little fellow, his tormentor in a cowardly manner ran off and left him to his fate. Charlie's young friend who had witnessed the whole performance of which only occupied a few minutes, being able to swim, jumped in but was not strong enough to get the drowning boy out. So he went ashore as soon as he could and took the news to Mrs. Cutler, who ran down to the basin, but nobody being far enough to call to some firemen who were at the engine house, who hurried to the place she indicated. Frank Winder was the first one there, and seeing the boy's hat floating on the water, plunged in and dove all around the place, but did not succeed in securing the body before the other persons came, but in a few moments there were several of them in the water, assisting in the search. Finally Frank Sanderson, in diving, saw the body and brought it up with him and it was quickly conveyed to shore, but it was too late, and all efforts at resuscitation proved futile, as life was extinct.

On Monday, June 17th, a little son of Mr. Spencer Search, living on the county line near Second street pike, was lying in bed when a black spider bit him on the forehead just above the right eye. No notice was taken of it until Tuesday afternoon when his grandmother, Mrs. Berrell, thought the child was getting erysipelas, and put sugar of lead on it. On Wednesday the little fellow was taken worse, and his parents immediately sent for Dr. Markley, of Haboro, who said for the child had been bitten by a black spider, but did not think it to be serious. The little sufferer lingered on until Thursday night, when death released him from his misery.

The gravel which has been put on the streets packs nicely.

A canal boat, fixed up as a house, is the snug residence of a couple who reside on Bunker Hill.

In the next Congressional convention of this district Bristol will be entitled to five delegates, and Bristol Township to two.

Commodore Samuel Bruden and his efficient aid, Eber Stremback, started on a voyage up the river on Monday. They were prepared for a long seige, and fish and turtle will doubtless be plenty when they return.

Lighting system is to be changed. The main lights in the postoffice are to be moved over into the office lobby, indirect lighting being the feature. Bids have not been placed for this phase of work. Blaine Patterson, chairman, and his committee, have authority to contract for the lightning system.

A door will be cut in the rear of the post office to permit ingress and egress of mails, in place of having them hauled out the side of the building or through the front, as at present. The mails will be transmitted by way of the rear drive, leading out to Richardson avenue, work upon which will be started as soon as the weather permits.

wise the parents. These are available at P. T. A. meetings, so the fathers and mothers can see what is being done by the individual scholars.

A number of the boys in these two grades make use of the shop in the school basement, fashioning airplanes, boats, bird-houses, etc. Some of the bird-houses have been placed on the school grounds, and others taken to their homes.

Instead of writing the necessary words on maps which they have drawn, the pupils have been taught to print them, the result being most gratifying. The maps are drawn free-hand, and many are the complimentary remarks from those who were certain they must have been traced.

Mrs. Mildred Slaughter's first and second grade tots, after reading a story on trucks in their weekly school magazine, took to the classroom all types of toy trucks and tractors, including fire engines, dump trucks, the trailer type, etc. Their present readings are based on this subject, likewise. At the grocery store which has been set in the room this term, the girls and boys "purchase" with artificial money, many articles found on the shelves, and so learn better how to aid in errands to the store for their parents. A "merchant" is chosen, and records kept of the "expenditures."

These tots honored one of their number, Irene Witkowski, on her birthday anniversary on the Leap Year date. Irene who was born in 1932 has only had two anniversaries. So her class-mates helped her in the celebration with a cake and bottles of milk. Grade two pupils are anticipating making a book showing the animals of the jungle, which will precede a trip to the zoo. Another journey planned in the near future is to a nearby chicken farm.

Mrs. Melvin Johnson and daughter, Olive and Katherine, Jackson street, were Thursday guests of relatives at Trenton, N. J.

The CAIRO GARTER MURDERS

SYNOPSIS

Major Bruce Kilgour, of the British Intelligence Service, enlists the aid of Captain Hugh North, of the U. S. Army Intelligence, in solving several puzzling murders in Cairo. On the left arm of each victim was found a woman's red and black garter. The police believe the killings are connected with recent gun-running activities in Egypt. The killer is known by the pseudonym of "Mr. Armstrong." Aboard the S. S. Fort Lucknow enroute to Cairo, Kilgour and North act as strangers. It has been arranged that North sit at the Captain's table with an interesting group whose acquaintanceship might prove valuable in Cairo. It consists of M. Lavasseur, a sardonic Frenchman; Dr. Larkin Ladd, Egyptologist and head of Lawrence College in Cairo, and his lovely daughter, Lolita, her friend, Daidre Clark, Richard Follonsbee, salesman for Heinemann and Schlager, arms manufacturers (Follonsbee claims he sells "sewing machines and reapers"); an exotic beauty, Natika Black, and Monsieur Philipides, retired president of the Italo-Hellenic Chemical Works which manufacture poison gas. Dr. Ladd's wife, and an Egyptian, Ben Yamen Hasid Pasha, did not come to dinner, but North meets them afterwards. She wore a knitted dress instead of an evening gown and no stockings. Follonsbee, obviously perturbed about something asks North to visit his cabin. Then comes news of another garter murder—the body of a German, named Wolff, was found in the desert. The man had been dead for weeks. Follonsbee turns white. "I have a letter to Wolff," he said thickly. Later, North goes to the salesman's cabin and finds Follonsbee—bound and gagged—shot through the stomach and a garter on his arm. He rambles, "Confidential—Talcum—Shot me—Watched—Laughed—Millions in it—Fool 'em—A lot of money—She was beautiful—Cruel—Blue hand" and dies. Searching for clues, North finds two charred pieces of cloth and a note reading "Maj Kilgour. Stick this in your pipe. Better get right." A knock comes to the door. North is relieved to see Kilgour. The Englishman is stunned at the news of Follonsbee's death. He had just received a cable from Scotland Yard that the salesman was an Englishman and that Heinemann and Schlager had chartered a freighter, the Lydia, which is loaded with ammunition for the Arabs. Follonsbee's muttered "Talcum" leads the detectives to a can of powder in which they discover a code for all war implements; grenades were called "butcher knives" and "three-inch nails" indicated 38-caliber pistol ammunition, etc. In the lining of a suitcase, they find the dead man's credentials. Just then the stateroom's door handle rattles. "Hide!" whispers Kilgour. "We must not be seen together."

CHAPTER XI
North darted into the bedroom but kept the door open just a crack so he could discern Kilgour's tall figure.
That "Mr. Armstrong" might have returned to remove some implicating evidence came as a dazzling possibility, and silently Hugh North snatched a carafe of Follonsbee's dresser. Years ago he had learned how effective a well-flung bottle can be.
Was this Mr. Armstrong? North had no time to guess for into the suite stepped a thick-bodied individual who moved with the silent power of a panther on the prowl. The intruder failed to perceive Kilgour, standing very still to one side. He advanced boldly into the sitting room and flicked on the light switch.
"What do you want?" Kilgour challenged.
The newcomer swung about, right hand plunged into his coat front. Poised, he faced the vigilant figure to his left.
"Say, what the—? Why, if it ain't the Limey. Say, Dick coked off."
"He's not to be disturbed," Kilgour evaded and, relaxing, offered his cigarette case.
It was now North's turn to be astonished. Kilgour was quite affable. "Well, Colonel Melhorne, what might you be doing here?"

"Dropped in for a nightcap with Dick," the other replied. "Might ask you the same question, so long as we're asking questions."
"For the same reason, Follonsbee's gone to bed though."
"Yeah? Must have been sussed as a billy goat to wreck his suite like this." A slow and mocking smile spread over the caller's thin scar of a mouth.
From what he could see through his narrow door crack, North thought the soldier of fortune little changed during the past two years. His features still retained their brutally handsome cast and their devil-may-care good nature. An old powder burn glowed blue along the "Yeh? Say, what's been going on around here?" The soldier of fortune's look again sought the disordered desk.

"Some pretty nasty work, Stag. Known Follonsbee long?"
The other narrowed his eyes and shook his reckless-looking head in a purely mechanical movement. Then he spoke as if he were making mental carbon copies of everything he said. "No, Follonsbee and I have been pals, but we only met in the bar as we were clearing the Mercury."
"You—er—had no business connection?" Kilgour persisted in a friendly tone.
"He and I, well, we were talking of mebbe doing a little business together sometime." Melhorne's mandrew grew uneasy. "Where is he?"

The newcomer swung about, right hand plunged into his coat front. "Why, if it ain't the Limey!" Melhorne greeted Kilgour.

intruder's left cheek. Long ago North had decided that said burn had been caused by the charge of a shot which had nicked off the top of Stag Melhorne's left ear. All in all, the soldier of fortune in his not badly fitting evening clothes presented at once a sinister and a romantic figure.
With a sudden flash of anger, Stag asked, "Who's that behind the door?"
"A lady, Colonel. She—er—dropped in with me. When we found Follonsbee sleeping we—er—just lingered to talk—er—don't you know?"
In faint contempt Melhorne's scarred face tightened. "Yeah? Try another gag, Kilgour, and quit stalling. I can smell raw blood all over the place. Who is in there?" He started forward, but the British agent blocked his path.
"I advise you to stay where you are."

North grew apprehensive as he sensed the swift growth of antagonism.
"Yeh? Well, listen, Limey, I go where I please and do what I please, get me?"
"Stay where you are, or you won't like the consequences a little bit. I don't advise you to try bluster in British territory," Kilgour advised in succinct accents. "And this vestment of yours is a disgrace. You're a British cop?"
"That's correct," came Kilgour's chill accents. "Now I'm asking, what business had you with Follonsbee?"
"Try and find out," snapped he with the unfamiliar decoration ribbon in his buttonhole.
"Take it easy, Colonel," Kilgour soothed. "There's a good reason why I want to know."

One or two special dishes should be prepared for Easter. Christmas and New Year's dinners may have exhausted your supply of new recipes; so here are a few "eggs-try" Easter suggestions:

Basta Fazul
(a one dish meal)
2 cups cooked, dried Limas
2 cups tomato sauce or strained tomatoes
1 tablespoon chopped onion
1/2 pound spaghetti
6 tablespoons bacon fat
1 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon pepper

Cook the spaghetti in boiling salted water until soft and drain. Cook the onion in the fat, add tomato, Limas and spaghetti.
Fish in Lemon Aspic
(Serves 6-8)
1 tablespoon gelatin
1/4 cup cold water
Sprinkle gelatin on water. Add: 1/4 cups hot water
1 teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon sugar
8 tablespoons lemon juice

Cool. Add: 1 1/2 cups any cooked, flaked fish (salmon, tuna, etc.)
Turn into mold and chill until firm. Unmold and decorate with lettuce hearts and fancy lemon garnishes. Serve with Tartare sauce.

Pineapple Cheese Salad
1 tablespoon gelatin
2 tablespoons cold water
Syrup drained from pineapple cups plus water to make 3/4 cup
3 packages (9 oz.) cream cheese
1/4 teaspoon salt
1/2 cup mayonnaise
1 cup whipping cream
2 tablespoons lemon juice
1—14 oz. can Hawaiian pineapple gems (drained)
1/2 cup nut meats, broken
1/2 cup preserved ginger, cut in small pieces. If desired
Soften gelatin in cold water five minutes; dissolve in pineapple syrup and water which has been brought to a boil. Mash cheese to soften; add salt, mayonnaise, whipped cream, dissolved gelatin and lemon juice. When partially thickened fold in pineapple and nuts, as a finger, if desired. Turn into individual molds and place in refrigerator until firm. Serve on crisp lettuce.

Yield: 8 to 10 servings.
Rhubarb Meringue Pie
1 1/2 cups (1 can) sweetened condensed milk
2 1/2 tablespoons lemon juice
2 eggs, separated
1 cup freshly stewed rhubarb
2 tablespoons sugar
Vanilla wafer pie crust

Blend sweetened condensed milk, lemon juice and egg yolks. Fold in rhubarb which has been drained. Pour into pie pan (9-inch) lined with vanilla wafer pie crust. Cover with meringue made by beating egg whites until stiff and adding sugar. Bake in moderate oven (350° F.) 10 minutes or until brown. Chill before serving.

Vanilla Wafer Pie Crust
Cut enough vanilla wafers in halves to stand around edge of 9-inch pie pan and put them in place. Roll enough vanilla wafers to make 3/4 cup of crumbs. Mix thoroughly with 4 tablespoons of melted butter. Cover bottom of pie pan, pressing firmly into place. Pour in filling as usual.

Café Au Lait
If you want a delicious hot drink any time of day or night, try café au lait (coffee with milk) made with decaffeinated coffee, so that there won't be any danger of sleepless hours later on. Use 1 1/2 heaping tablespoons decaffeinated coffee to each cup (1/2 pint) water. Make by any method desired. Have ready a pot of hot milk. When serving, pour milk and coffee together into cup in equal amounts. If using decaffeinated coffee drip grind, measure well-rounded tablespoon instead of heaping tablespoon.

Neitzel-Halk Wedding Is
A Noon-tide Event Today

At a nuptial ceremony solemnized in Neshaminy Methodist Church, Hulmeville, this afternoon at 12:30 o'clock, Miss Kathryn E. Halk, Bellevue avenue, Hulmeville, became the wife of Elwyn H. Neitzel, Bath Road, Bristol Township. The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Orville Morris, and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Herman Neitzel.

The Rev. M. R. Meredith, pastor of the church, was the officiating clergyman, and Miss Clara L. Ilick served as organist.

Attending the bride as bridesmaid was her sister, Miss Jean E. Halk, Hulmeville; and Ralph Neitzel, Bristol Township, brother of the groom, was best man.

Various organ selections were played by Miss Ilick prior to the solemnization of the rites, with Lohengrin's wedding march used for the entrance of the bride, and Mendelssohn's march at the conclusion of the ceremony.

Given in marriage by Orville Morris, the bride was attractive in pink and gray silk print dress, street length, featuring a fitted jacket and long sleeves. Her turban was of pink jersey; her slippers of navy tone; and she wore a corsage of tulle roses.

Miss Jean Halk was attired in aqua silk crepe, with a tight bodice, flare skirt, and bracelet length sleeves. Her pink hat was formed of grosgrain flowers, and her slippers were of navy blue. A corsage of pink rose-buds was worn.

At a reception which took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Morris, Hulmeville, after the wedding, relatives of the contracting parties were guests. Mr. and Mrs. Neitzel will leave today for a short trip, returning on Thursday. They will take up their residence in an apartment at the home of the bride's mother, Hulmeville.

Mrs. Morris, mother of the bride, chose for the ceremony a dress of navy blue crepe, with hat of matching shade, and wore a corsage of red roses. Mrs. Neitzel, the groom's mother, was garbed in a flowered silk, with navy blue accessories. Her corsage was also of red roses.

BRISTOL ENDS 3RD IN DISTRICT GYM MEET; LOSES TITLE

Bristol Team Held The Championship for Four Years

JENKINTOWN IS FIRST

Drakes Walk Away With The Title, Rolling Up A Score of 47½ Points

WEST CHESTER, Mar. 11—After a four year reign, Bristol High's gym team was finally toppled from the throne as kings of the gymnastic world in District One. And the new champions who were crowned unceremoniously as P. I. A. A. District One titleholders this year were the Drakes from Jenkintown High.

Bristol High was right in the thick of the fight to retain their coveted crown midway through the meet. But in the last three events they could score only one point. Blanked in both the horizontal bar and tumbling pieces, they managed to get their lone tally in the rope climb when John Melidio finished fifth. Bristol failed to enter a contestant at all in the tumbling event.

At the end of the fourth event, Bristol trailed the Drakes by only a half point, 21½ to 21. But then came Jenkintown's scoring deluge in which they chalked up 26 tallies in those final three events out of a possible 45. Upper Darby was also bunched among the top three after the fourth event with 17½. They grabbed 13 more in the last three pieces to easily pass Bristol and clinch second place.

The final scoring in the meet found Jenkintown with 47½ points as compared to 30½ for Upper Darby and 22 for Bristol. Lower Merion and Fallsington were the only other teams to score, getting 3 and 2 points respectively.

Summaries:
Parallel bars: 1st, Fell, Bristol, 57; 2nd, Snyder, Jenkintown, 52.5; 3rd, Dooley, Upper Darby, 47.4; 4th, Rook, Upper Darby, 45.5; 5th, Cialella, Bristol, 44.

EXCITING DOUBLE-HEADER IS BOOKED FOR TONIGHT

Sport fans of this vicinity will be treated to a double-header of basketball that should bring a thrilling and exciting night, for tonight on the Italian Mutual Aid floor Tom Campion's Bristol Scholastics will play Jimmy Doheny's Fallsington Scholastics in the first game while in the main fracas, Rohm and Haas continue their rivalry with Profy's to decide second place in the Bristol Basketball League. First game will begin at eight o'clock.

The Bristol Scholastics will be players from the Bristol High School squad as picked by Coach Tom Campion. It will be the nucleus that carried the local school to the Lower Bucks County championship. Just whom Campion will pick remains to be seen, although it will probably be the best as the Fallsington boys are after Bristol's scalp.

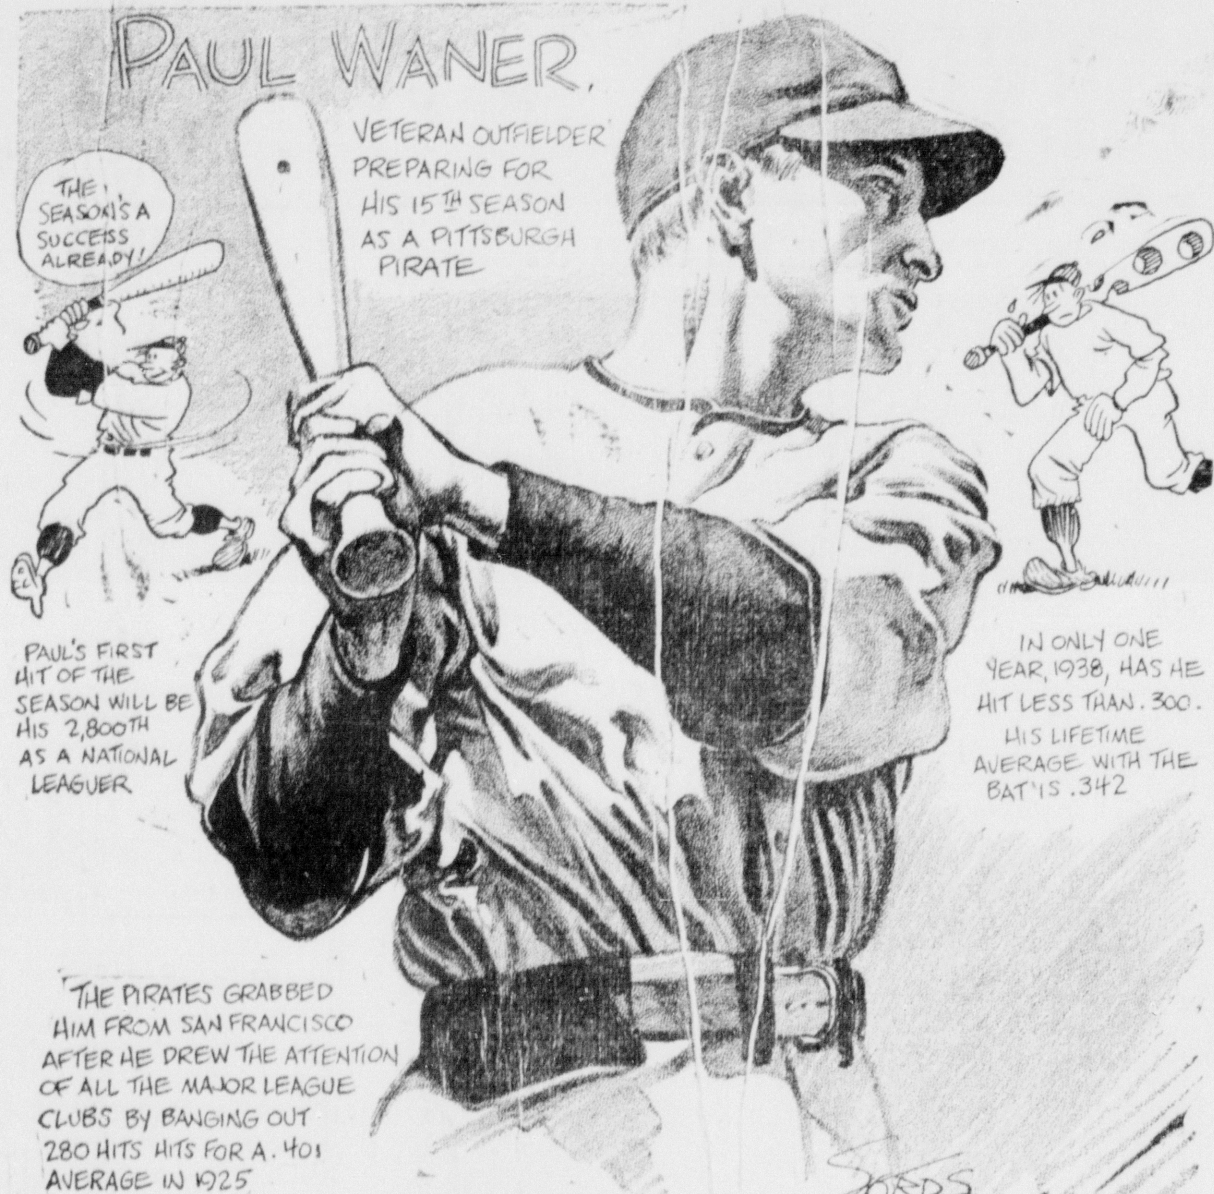

Jimmy Doheny's Falcons made an excellent showing in the circuit this season and the team he has picked for tonight will be the same club that represented Falls Township in the school league. This team played on the local court last week and helped the Falls Alumni to trim the Celtics. Driscoll and Moon were outstanding in this contest and they feel certain to lead the Dohenyemen to victory tonight.

The Profyemen are one up on the Rohm and Haas team as the result of beating the chemical workers last Thursday night. A triumph for the Mill Streeters tonight will give them second place and also the right to meet the Grundy team in a three-game playoff to decide the crown of the loop. Manager Pico, who guided the rattlemen to their first victory will start Slaven Dorsey, Hughes, Profy and Carnvale against the Maple Beach team while Manager Eagan intends to start Cole, Roe, Smith, Everitt and Cahall.

It has been announced that on Wednesday night the Manhattan Soap team will play the Langhorne Red Raiders in the first game scheduled for next Thursday night.

Britain, France Ready To Aid

London, Mar. 11—Great Britain and France stand ready to help Finland "with all available resources at their disposal," if a new appeal for aid is received," Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain told the House of Commons today.

The British and French governments have so informed Helsinki, the Prime Minister said.

He made clear, however, that such augmented aid was contingent upon receipt of an appeal from Finland.

Chamberlain's statement was made soon after the British Government revealed officially that it refused last month to transmit Russian peace proposals to Finland on the ground that Moscow's terms were too severe.

An official statement said that Soviet Ambassador Maisky called on Parliamentary Under Secretary Richard Butler and invited the British Government to transmit peace terms to Helsinki.

A British Government spokesman said: "Sweden, unlike ourselves, passed on the Russian terms to Finland. Apparently the Swedes have not the same scruples as ourselves about putting forward such terms."

The Great Game of Politics

tion for a certain type of New Deal journalist, who went after Mr. Weir with tooth and claw. Usually, these New Deal literary sharpshooters have found their targets more or less inarticulate and defenseless. They could be assaulted with impunity, smeared without fear of a comeback. Accordingly, the reaction that followed the attack on Mr. Weir was both surprising and disconcerting.

BECAUSE Mr. Weir directly replied with a speed and candor that left the New Dealers slightly groggy. The less shoddy among them shifted their ground and apologized, but grudgingly. Others, true to form, simply ignored the facts, repeated their unfounded statements. But, generally speaking, they were all glad to drop Mr. Weir, who clearly had the better of the encounter. Among the things alleged against him were that he is a millionaire; a reactionary; an anti-labor man; not in sympathy with the liberal movement; opposed to the Glenn Frank report (hailed by the New Dealers as a great progressive document) and hostile to collective bargaining—in brief, a very horrid fellow, indeed.

—O—

IN reply, Mr. Weir proved by the record that he not only fully endorsed the Glenn Frank report but over a year ago had urged exactly that kind of report. He further denounced words put in his mouth by the New Deal writers as grossly and provably untrue. He denounced as false the statement that he is opposed to collective bargaining and proved it by quotations from a speech on February 12, 1934, in which he said: "I heartily approve of the provision for collective bargaining guaranteed to employees in the NRA Act." By other speeches Mr. Weir showed that he had not only approved collective-bargaining rights of employees but approved the creation of an agency to enforce such rights, provided only that it be "fair and impartial." "My only 'crime,'" said Mr. Weir, "has been to oppose on principle a badly constructed, evilly administered law, which I believe harmful to employees, employers and the country at large."

—O—

AS FOR being a millionaire, Mr. Weir made the simple statement that what money he had been made honestly and by hard work. This he contrasted with the many wealthy New Dealers who had inherited their money and never known what it was to worry about the next meal—"an experience, incidentally," said Mr. Weir, "from which I have not been free." It was interesting that Gen. Hugh Johnson, resenting the attack on Mr. Weir, confirmed in his column most of his statements. As former director of the NRA, General Johnson knew Mr. Weir as a friend of labor and an advocate of collective bargaining, whose fight against the Labor Relations Board has been sustained by the courts and who at the start of the New Deal "was considered by it the most liberal and progressive employer in his industry."

—O—

ALTOGETHER, Mr. Weir gave his

New Deal assailants a new experience. Instead of taking their castigation lying down, he stood up and smacked back hard. Any impartial reading of the attacks and Mr. Weir's reply will convince any detached person that Mr. Weir not only clearly demonstrated the complete falsity of the attack on him but put the attacking columnists in a painful position—that is, those among them sensitive enough to feel pain. The fact is that the exchange has redounded to the benefit of both Mr. Weir and his party, by giving an opportunity to show Mr. Weir's record of friendliness to collective bargaining and the general enlightened nature of his record and views. These could not have been as effectively brought out but for the attack. As it is, the only thing of which Mr. Weir stands convicted is that he believes the NLRB has evilly administered the Wagner Act. Even Mr. William Green has expressed a similar view. So have many leading Democrats.
